

Entomopathogenic-Nematology class for foreign participants

KHUONG B. NGUYEN

Entomology and Nematology Department
University of Florida

Scientists from different countries were taught in Insect Parasitic Nematodes either in the Department of Entomology and Nematology, University of Florida or in their home countries from 1999 to 2006.

July	1999	Five scientists from Mexico.
August	2000	Two scientists from Egypt
July	2003	Two scientists from Ecuador

May 2004 One scientist from S. Africa and one scientist from Turkey:

October 2004 A class in Brazil:

A group of participants

A scientist in a practical class

June 2005, one student from Brazil came to the Department of Entomology and Nematology to work with Entomopathogenic nematodes for 6 months.

Vanessa is working with drawing tube.

Graduation party for Vanessa

April 2006 A class in Beijing, China

A class in laboratory

In a field trip.

January 2007 a student came from South Africa: Jeanne Yvonne de Waal. She was trained how to use DNA to identify EPN in a survey and to use sequences in a publication.

